

What the Experts Are Saying...

Jennings Bryant
Associate Dean, Professor, Reagan Chair of Broadcasting
University of Alabama

"My first encounter with the Alliance was as Chair of the Alabama Information Age Task Force. APT's publications and educational outreach helped shape the thinking of the Task Force as we developed our final report."

Barbara O'Connor
Director, Institute for the Study of Politics and Media
California State University, Sacramento

"Since its inception, the Alliance for Public Technology has helped to shape policy at the federal and state level to ensure that equal access to advanced telecommunications products and services is a fundamental right for all Americans."

Robert C. Rowe
Senior Partner, Balhoff & Rowe, LLC
Former Chair of the Montana Public Service Commission and Former President of NARUC

"APT brings together a diverse group of consumers, public interest advocates, and the companies and people who build America's networks, to constructively advocate broadband deployment and access for all Americans. It has been an honor to work with APT and its members for many years."

Max E. Stachura, M.D.
Director, Medical College of Georgia Center for Telehealth
Georgia Research Alliance Eminent Scholar in Telemedicine

"The Alliance for Public Technologies is a unique organization whose straightforward objective is universal access to the benefits and potential of broadband. Members quickly learn the power of merging the core values of their own constituencies into this APT objective. Always open to ideas from consumers, industry, and government, APT maintains an independent balance with each position it adopts and advocates."
